The Star That Shows the Way

As the Christmas season wanes, we continue to celebrate the new year with the season of Epiphany. In many parts of the world, Christians will mark a blessing on their doorway at this time of year and hang bright stars to represent both the Star of Bethlehem that guided the wise men to the baby Jesus, and the light of Christ himself.

When I was in Germany in January of 2018, these Moravian Stars were everywhere, and especially in every church building. I was so excited this fall to find one of these stars at the religious supply store, and have it proudly hanging in my front window at the parsonage. Every time I look at the star, I am reminded of God's love come down to earth to dwell among us.

We do not always have a star as bright as the Bethlehem Star in our sky, but we do have the reflection of the sun's light on Earth's moon. This year I have been fortunate enough to experience the full moon on a clear night in the prairie. There are moments when the moon feels close enough to reach out and touch. It is so bright that capturing a clear image is difficult without a fancy camera. On those cloudless nights, the moon is definitely bright enough to wander outside without a flashlight as the moon reflects off the road and illuminates a safe path.

In our day to day life, Christ is the nourishing light in the darkness. The moon waxes and wanes, but the light of Christ is constant. During Advent we sing a prayer asking Christ to be our light and shine in our hearts, the darkness, and the church, because we long for light, peace, hope, truth, etc.

Beloved, the Holy Spirit is with us, even on the darkest of nights of our soul, to illumine our path and help guide us on our journeys of faith and life. In turn, we are Christ's light on earth as we allow the Spirit to work through us, and as we work together in this ministry partnership to shine that light brightly in Stutsman County and beyond.

Christians in Action

Emerging Structure for Ministry Together

Our Local Coordinators have been reviewing proposed By-Laws in preparation for incorporation of Christians in Action as a legal entity. This is a new thing. In 2022 there was a moment when we were coming together as a partnership that we had the opportunity to incorporate, but the time was not right. There were too many unanswered questions and a sense that we wanted to start supporting each other in ministry quickly. Additional structure seemed to push meaningful ministry together down the road.

In hindsight, some things would have been easier over the past year if we had already incorporated. Bank accounts and web-site registrations would have been centralized. Online giving and email lists would have been easier to set up. Even the three successful call processes could have been handled differently.

The goal of Christians in Action has never been to establish a new institution (or parish-like) entity. Even so, our lives in ministry together will be aided by having a layer of legal organization (for bank accounts and online activities) and will offer a clear path for congregations to enter or leave the partnership and to continue participating in ways that strengthen their ministry.

At our upcoming annual meetings, each participating congregation will be asked 1) to vote to subscribe to the work of the partnership and 2) each congregation will elect a Local Coordinator who will sit on the board of the new non-profit organization.

This new layer does not change the organization of any individual congregation. Each congregation continues to have its own council and standing as an independent congregation. We all retain our own constitution and budget responsibilities.

As this newsletter is being prepared, there is still work to be done on specific provisions of the new organizational structure. Some things are clear:

- 1) Articles of Incorporation would be filed with the Secretary of State of North Dakota as a non-profit organization.
- 2) Bylaws would be prepared.
- 3) The new non-profit organization would request its own EIN (Employer Identification Number.)
- 4) The new non-profit organization would request to be part of the ELCA Group Exemption with the IRS. (This is the same Group Exemption that currently covers all 8 congregations.)

Please remain attentive to the conversations leading up to your congregation's annual meeting and direct questions to your Council or Local Coordinator.

Story of Impact

On Wednesday evening December 6, 18 8th and 9th grade Confirmation students and some of their parents helped wrap presents at the Anne Carlsen Center. We wrapped presents for 67 clients which took us less than an hour and a half.

The staff at the Anne Carlsen Center commented how grateful they were to us. During the pandemic, no one could come into the building due to their clients being so susceptible to the illness. It took the staff weeks to wrap the presents because they could only wrap when they had a spare moment. What these Confirmation students can do in 90 minutes is amazing! This yearly event is a blessing to the Anne Carlsen Center, their staff, and their residents as well as to our Confirmation students!

Welcome Vicar Andrew

Vicar Andrew Stephens joins the Christians in Action ministry team in January as an intern pastor.

He will serve Emmanuel, Gackle; Trinity, Jamestown; and Montpelier Lutheran Churches as well as the partnership.

Come welcome him during worship and the meal before the annual meeting on January 28.

Community Reflections

My experience in Hawaii was amazing. I am lucky to be able to say that I was part of the first North Dakota school that was able to perform in the Pearl Harbor parade. Singing at the USS Missouri was amazing because it was my first time performing at a naval base. I learned so much while still being able to sing and do what I love. Let me tell you more about my experiences in Hawaii at the USS Missouri, the USS Arizona, and being in the Pearl Harbor parade.

Being on the USS Missouri was a super awesome experience. When I stood on the deck of the boat it hit me that I got to stand and sing for all the people that fought in Pearl Harbor. When I got a chance to look around the boat, I ended up going below deck to see how big it was. I got to see where people slept, ate, and did research. It was crazy how small the bunks on the boat were. Then after I was done exploring, I got to go sing for the people who fought for our country. That was a once-in-a-lifetime experience and I wish I could go back and do it again. After singing our group went over to the USS Arizona. Once I got in the theater to get instructions on what to do on the USS Arizona the first thing the lady said was when we were over on the ship to make sure that we were always quiet. Being at the memorial was so amazing. What I was standing on was the memorial, but the ship was right underneath. When looking through the openings in the memorial you could still see the parts of the ship sticking up out of the water. It was huge and there were still oil bubbles coming up out of the water from the ship. As I walked to the back of the memorial there was a wall with everyone's names that were on the USS Arizona. I stood in that room for 5 minutes with about 20 other people in pure silence just admiring the wall of people that went down when the ship went down. I could've stayed and looked at the ship for a very long time, but our boat came, and we left.

The next day was the parade. We went to the opening ceremony and got the honor of being able to sing for three of the Pearl Harbor veterans. Before we sang, we got to listen to the veterans talk about their experiences. The veterans I got to listen to were 101, 102, and 103. The first veteran told us that he had written 16 pages and forgot them, so he said to keep serving our country. The second veteran had his son interview him. He was a tuba player on the ship he was on and on the day of Pearl Harbor, he helped load missiles. It was amazing that he was a musician just like all the kids who were at the parade. After we listened to them talk, we got to sing America The Beautiful with many other choirs. The Jamestown Choir also got to practice the Star-Spangled Banner with another choir. After practicing a couple of times with the other choir we went and sang to start the very beginning of the parade. After singing we were able to watch a bit of the parade. As soon as the Jamestown Band came by the choir was able to jump right in behind them. It was amazing to be able to march with the band and be able to see all the people. The best part was being able to represent North Dakota and Jamestown the way we did. I wish I could go back and do it all over again.

"Hurry up and wait!"; that was the motto we all lived by on this trip. However, behind the late buses and early mornings, this was a trip that, regardless of how you view it, will stick with you for the rest of your life. I am a history nut, and I can find myself lost in books and internet videos or articles related to anything about history. I was unbelievably excited when this opportunity arose to go to Hawaii and Pearl Harbor. When one becomes so indulged in history, you cannot give up the opportunity to see it in person! Not only were the prospects of attending the Pearl Harbor National Memorial, the U.S.S. Missouri, the U.S.S. Arizona Memorial, and participating in the memorial parade enticing, but also to get the chance to learn about and experience the home islands of the native Hawaiian people and their culture. I have a friend who is part Hawaiian and has family there, so he told me many things about what to expect.

Ultimately, if you were to ask me what I took away from this trip, I would tell you that I gained a new perspective. A perspective on what it means to be an American. A perspective on what it means for those who are Pacific Islanders. A perspective into those who live their lives with 'Aloha'. The sacrifice that was given on that day, December 7th, 1941, is one that could never be repaid by future generations. However, what I realized is that those who fought and died for us did not do it so that we would have to repay them down the road. They did it so that we could carry on the legacy of 'Aloha,' the legacy of love. Love for family, love for country, and love for your fellow man. So, a Hawaiian principle is what guided those heroes. Let us strive to never let the fire, the fire of life, be extinguished.

- Colin Conway, JHS Senior

My Hawaii experience is colored with appreciation for Hawaiian culture. I learned many new things in Hawaii that I did not know before, like that pineapples grow on bushes and not trees. In Polynesian cultures, it is customary for men to endure pain by getting your belly button tattooed. The young men also do all the cooking for the house and for their family. In a way this dedication and loyalty reminds me of the US men who fought for their country in Pearl Harbor.

After a little turbulence in getting around, I was privileged to see and walk on the U.S.S. Missouri and the U.S.S. Arizona memorials. The feeling of solemn despair and silent pride was a heavy felt weight shared by many friends I talked to on this trip. I, myself, am not a history buff by any means but it doesn't take much to find something to relate to or that humanizes all these people who lost their lives. Letters to loved ones and personal items seemed to move me the most. Getting to hear a couple Pearl Harbor veterans and Rosie Riveters speak, well into their 100 years of life at the Pearl Harbor parade Jamestown was also a part of, was also incredibly touching. These brave men and women are living reminders of an important time in American history, and it is a memory I will always carry with me.

From the Polynesian culture to the U.S. memorials, the overwhelming feeling of appreciation, support, and love for the entire community. It was an honor and a pleasure to represent North Dakota at such an event.
